

Welcome to Clements Parts.

Clements Support Services (UK) Ltd personnel have been working "hands on" within the radar and electronics industry for over 35 years. As our name implies, we are a support company and can supply extensive engineering services both electronic and mechanical. The majority of radar equipment supported to date contain obsolete Line Replacement Units or components. It is our job to find the original components or valid replacement with the same "Form Fit" and "Function". We are continually receiving considerable interest, enquiries and orders from UK and overseas customers who have commented that they are receiving continued excellent support and service for their equipment, substantially reducing downtime, by using Clements Support Services. To receive the same benefits and outstanding service, please contact us.

We can supply obsolete parts and components from all leading manufacturers:
